came to a stop in the roadway at the bottom of the hill. She would not pull forward and after about 1 minute I went to check on her. As I pulled up she got out of her car and pulled her pants legs up past her knees. I saw that her right knee had an abrasion to it (about 3 inches in diameter). I asked her why she had not pulled up to the checkpoint and she stated her car had died. I asked her if she was ok and she stated that she had been assaulted earlier that day.

She returned to her car after I asked her several times and tried to start it. She did not have a key for it and had to start it with a screw driver. The cover to the shifter was also missing. She could not get the car to start. I told her we could push the car to the side of the road since it was sitting in the middle of the road obstructing traffic. She tried to put it into neutral, but the shifter would not move. I asked her if she could call someone and she said that she had gotten mad at the friend who brought her to her car and thrown it across the road. There was a cell phone on the dash of the car, but she stated it was not hers and did not want to use it.

I told her that we could have it towed if that would work. She told me she did not care. She told me to tow it and trash it. She was done with Morganton and the people here. She said that the police had not arrested the person who had assaulted her earlier. I asked who had assaulted her and she told me Bodie James. I asked her if she meant Bodie Johnson and she said yes. She told me several times that she had a broken hand. I asked her each time (at least 4 times) if she wanted the EMS to come check it. She told me each time no she did not that they were worthless and could not do anything.

Since the car was in the road blocking traffic and not able to be moved I contacted communications and had them dispatch a wrecker to us. The defendant then said she wanted Terry to tow it. I asked her who Terry was and she told me Terry Gardin(?). I told her I did not know who Terry was and asked if he had a wrecker. She told me he did and that his business was located near Aldis. There is only one wrecker service near Aldis and that is A & A wrecker service. I told the defendant this and she did not indicate that this was wrong. I then had communications to send A & A Towing Service, Terry Gardin(?) to our location per the owner of the car.

I ran the defendants name through NCAWARE as we waited and found she had a criminal summons for simple assault. I printed it and served it on the defendant. I explained to her that the court date was 08/18/2014. She told me she didn't care that she wasn't going to court. She tore the summons into several pieces and tossed them into the car. She stated she was going to go to the complainants house (her sister in law) and take care of her. I told her that was not a good idea and she said "I don't give a fuck."

The defendant went to the rear of the house we were near to get a drink. The wrecker arrived on scene and as I was going to tell the defendant this she came to the road yelling and cursing. She told me that it was the wrong wrecker service and she did not want them "touching her fucking car!". I tried to explain to her that A & A was the wrecker service near Aldis and that the car was going to be towed. We had already been sitting in the roadway for over 20 minutes blocking traffic. The defendant did not listen to me and continued to yell and curse stating that nobody was towing her "fucking car!".

The wrecker driver was in the drivers seat of the car attempting to get it prepared to be loaded on the rollback. The defendant yelled she was getting her "fucking stuff" from the car and opened the passenger door all the way forcefully. She reached in and instead of getting her stuff she picked up the screw driver. The defendants demeanor and actions were violent and I was not sure if she was going to attack the wrecker driver. She would put the screw driver into the ignition slot and then pull it out and wave the screw driver around. I told her to get out of the car at least 6 times before she threw the screwdriver down and stood up. I told her to step away from the car and she told me she wasn't going to allow it to be towed. I told her to step away or she would go to jail. She asked what for and I told her for obstructing me in my duties. She told me I couldn't tow the car and couldn't arrest her.

I told her then that she was under arrest and instructed her to turn around. She did not turn and I had to put my right hand on her left arm to turn her around and cuff her. As I cuffed her I made sure that there was room enough for my pointer finger to get between her wrists and the cuffs. I retrieved her purse from the car along with the cell phone and got a business card from

A & A Towing so she could locate her car later.

I started to the magistrates office and she told me she was having a miscarriage. I asked her if she wanted the EMS to respond and she told me yes. I had communications notify the EMS and have them respond to the PVA of the magistrates office.

Once the EMS arrived I had the defendant exit my car. The EMT's asked her what was wrong and she told them that her hand was broken and hurt from the cuffs. I asked her if she wanted them to take care of that or the miscarriage. She then told them that she was having a miscarriage. She stated she was 2 weeks pregnant (only a pregnancy test not confirmed by a doctor) and she was bleeding and cramping. She did have some drops of blood on the inner legs of her pants, but the blood appeared to be dried.

The defendant asked to go to Grace and was transported by the EMS with me riding along. I did put her cuffs on in front so the EMT's could get vitals and make it more comfortable for the defendant laying on the stretcher. The defendant removed the sheet the EMT had used to cover her and told him that he was unprofessional and worthless.

Once we arrived at Grace Hospital she started arguing and yelling at the ER nurse. She refused to be treated by the ER staff. The ER staff removed the blood pressure and oxygen sensors. The defendant however removed her IV needle herself and started smearing blood on the sheets. Since she refused treatment she was released back into my custody. I asked the defendant to walk back out to my car and she asked what would happen if she didn't. I told her that we would carry or drag her if necessary. She told me to drag her then. I asked her to walk and she did not. I placed my right hand on her left elbow and started escorting her down the hall by pushing on the elbow. The defendant pulled her arm close to her side in an effort to squeeze my hand. I warned her to stop and she did not. As we got close to the nurses station she tried to twist her upper body with my hand squeezed between her body and arm. This would have twisted my hand and made using it very difficult to do. I pushed her forward and then turned her around. PSO Belanger held her right arm as I undid the cuffs and recuffed her behind her back. She would not walk so we escorted her out by using the cuffs as leverage to bend her upper body forward and control her movements.

We returned to the magistrates office and I swore to the charges against her. The magistrate approved the charges and placed her in jail under a secured bond.

I transported the defendant to BCDF and left her in their custody. The defendant told me that I had ruined her life and she was going to be a criminal from now on.
