	On 07-05-2014 at approximately 0109 hours I arrived to 1604 E Commerce Av in reference to a recall for a public disturbance call for service. Upon arrival I encountered two females, one on crutches, approaching who began to report an assault. The other parties, including John Wilson, were present and this appeared to be a neighborhood disturbance. While speaking with the females Wilson began to pace around the street (1600 block) and cursed loudly to include the word "fuck"

and/or it`s derivatives. Noticing that Wilson was most likely going to interfere further in the investigation I attempting to speak with an older lady, believed to be a family member (possibly grandmother) to see if she could calm her side of the altercation, mainly Wilson, down.

As I approached her for conversation Wilson approached me, unprovoked, and got into my face with his chest a few inches to almost touching mine. This was approximately five feet into the yard of 1604 E Commerce Av. He was yelling over my shoulder and further instigating the witnesses/victims. It was apparent he was intoxicated (short time later could detect odor of alcohol on breath) and would continue the disturbance.

Walking up to someone and placing their chest against the other while in that intense and angry demeanor is a common sign of challenging/prevoking someone to fight, not to mention doing that to a uniform police officer. At the time I was not speaking with Wilson only his grandmother.

While up against me I attempted to latch onto him while his grandmother tried to physically restrain him from behind from acting out. He tensed up his arm, made a 90 degree angle at his elbow, and tried to break away from both our grips. I got ahold of him again while another male attempted to separate us who, from what it appeared, was trying to prevent the arrest.

I tried to place Wilson on a hood or trunk of a car however he kept trying to get away from me and physically resisted putting his hands behind his back until I wrestled him to the ground (all while ordering him to place his hands behind his back). Once on the ground he complied and was taken into custody.

The intoxicated and disruptive charge was made due to him pacing around the street intoxicated while cursing loudly, and getting up against me while attempting to further the altercation by yelling at the female victims/witnesses.

Wilson advised his only injury to be from the previous altercation and was unsure how he got the scrapes on his hand.

Wilson was taken before Magistrate Billips and given a $1,500.00 secured bond, which was posted, and released.
